General Type Standard

The Devon Rex is a short haired breed of medium foreign build with a unique head type which is quite unlike any other breed. The short, wide wedge with large, low set, very wide based ears and large oval eyes set on a slant with a 'wicked expression' giving the breed its 'pixie' face. The short, dense coat, which is soft in texture, has a distinctive wave or ripple especially over the back and sides. The cat should be of medium size and in excellent physical condition.

|----------------------------|--|
| Head | Short, broad wedge with high cheek bones. Strong muzzle with firm chin and a well defined whisker break. Short nose with definite stop. Brow curving back to a flat skull. |
| Ears | Large, set low and wide apart, very wide at base, tapering to rounded tips and well covered with fine fur. With or without short ear muffs around base and tufts on tips which should not be confused with streamers and ear furnishings seen in Semi-Longhair breeds. |
| Eyes | Wide set, large, oval shaped and sloping towards outer edges of ears. Any colour acceptable. |
| Neck, Body and Legs | Slender neck. Body hard and muscular, slender and of medium length, broad chest, carried high on slim legs, with length of hind legs emphasized. Paws small and oval. |
| Tail | Long and tapering, well covered with short fur. |

|----------------|--|
| Coat | Short, dense and soft in texture and of even length on the body. The coat must be waved or rippled, particularly on the back, sides and tail; waving may also extend down the legs. The coat on the head and neck, over the shoulders and on the legs and paws is sometimes too short to wave; rexing in these areas is desirable but absence of it is not a withholding fault. A few short guard hairs are acceptable. Whiskers and eyebrows crinkled, rather coarse, of medium length and may sometimes be stubby. |
| Colours | Colour and pattern are irrelevant and carry no points therefore a cat should not be penalised if apparently wrongly registered. |
